A movement has been started in Phoenix and the valley for the organization of an Ohlo society. There is a large number of former Buckeyes here, probably more former residents of that state than any northern stare with the exception of Illinois. But there has never been a state society formed here. The Ohlo society of New Tork City was the first state society formed in the metropolis and it is by far the largest and most active as it has been for many years. Persons interested in the organization of a society in the Salt River valley may communicate with Oliver King, circulation manager of The Republican.
